How to get the most out of your dog's training session

By Dr. Sarah E. Wilson
A veterinarian and behaviorist

Q I have a 10-month-old dog who is very energetic and loves to play. I want to make sure I am providing enough mental stimulation for him. How can I do this?

A Mental stimulation is essential for your dog's overall well-being. It helps to keep his mind sharp and prevents boredom, which can lead to destructive behaviors. Here are some ways to provide mental stimulation:

1. Use puzzle toys: These toys are designed to challenge your dog's problem-solving skills. They often contain treats or kibble that the dog must figure out how to retrieve.

2. Hide-and-seek: Hide treats or toys around the house and encourage your dog to find them. This game can be played indoors or outdoors.

3. Training sessions: Regular, short training sessions can provide mental stimulation. Focus on teaching new tricks or reinforcing existing ones.

4. Interactive toys: Toys that require your dog to interact with them, such as tug-of-war toys or fetch toys, can provide mental stimulation.

5. Social interaction: Regular social interaction with other dogs and people can provide mental stimulation. Consider taking your dog to a dog park or a training class.

6. Scent work: Dogs have a strong sense of smell, and scent work can be a great way to provide mental stimulation. Hide treats or toys around the house and encourage your dog to find them.

7. Agility training: Agility training can provide mental stimulation by challenging your dog's physical and mental abilities. Consider enrolling your dog in an agility class.

8. Rotational toys: Rotate your dog's toys regularly to keep them interested. This helps to prevent boredom and keeps your dog's mind sharp.

9. Clicker training: Clicker training can provide mental stimulation by teaching your dog to perform specific behaviors for a reward.

10. Treat-dispensing toys: Toys that dispense treats when your dog interacts with them can provide mental stimulation.

11. Interactive apps: There are several mobile apps available that provide mental stimulation for your dog. These apps often feature puzzles and games that your dog can interact with.

12. Enrichment activities: Enrichment activities, such as scent work, puzzle toys, and training, can provide mental stimulation for your dog.

13. Social interaction: Regular social interaction with other dogs and people can provide mental stimulation. Consider taking your dog to a dog park or a training class.

14. Scent work: Dogs have a strong sense of smell, and scent work can be a great way to provide mental stimulation. Hide treats or toys around the house and encourage your dog to find them.

THE GIRL WHO SAVED THE WORLD: A young girl, likely the author, is shown holding a book or project related to the story.

...the first time I saw her, she was sitting on the ground, looking up at me with a smile that made my heart melt.

She was wearing a simple, light-colored dress, and her hair was braided in two small pigtails. She looked so innocent and so full of life.

I had never seen anyone like her before. She was different from all the other children I had met in the village.

She was the only one who seemed to be happy, no matter what. She had a way of looking at the world that was so full of hope and joy.
